

ART S P E A K S

What role do conversations and dialogue play in our different fields?

Educators, journalists, and community partners come together on April 5th from 5:30-7:30 at Tulsa Community College's Metro Campus to discuss these important issues.

Art Speaks is a one night community collaboration between Tulsa Community College and the 5th International Infant and Toddler Conference, bringing together partners from across the college and community to explore the value, benefits, and limits of dialogue and conversation. Charles Monroe-Kane (producer at Wisconsin Public Radio's To the Best of Our Knowledge and author of Lithium Jesus) will be opening the 60 minute panel conversation, moderated by Dr. Greg Stone (TCC-Metro Campus) and including people from early childhood education, art therapy, nursing, museum studies, and the humanities. Before and after the panel, TCC students will present their community work in poster projects, as a way to explore how the ideas from the panel work in the classroom and community.

April 5 TCC Metro Campus 909 S Boston Ave, Tulsa, OK 74119

This event is free and open to the public. Poster Presentations: 5:30 - 7:30 p.m.
Panel Discussion: 6:00-7:00 p.m.

Light hors d'oeuvres will be served.

Dr. Barbara Sorrels

Executive Director of The Institute for Childhood Education and the author of the award-winning book, Reaching and Teaching Children Exposed to Trauma. She has worked in the field of early childhood education for over 40 years serving as a teacher, program director and university professor.

Charles Monroe-Kane

Charles Monroe-Kane is a producer for Wisconsin Public Radio's nationally-syndicated program "To the Best of Our Knowledge" (TTBOOK), and is the former host of "Director's Cut," a weekly show on Wisconsin Public Television that features independent films.

Laura Voth

Artist and community art educator Laura Voth coordinates several community programs at Philbrook Museum of Art in Tulsa, OK, including "Art Focus," an arts program done in partnership with the Alzheimer's Association OK Chapter.